This department offers degrees at the undergraduate level (http://catalog.unk.edu/catalog-archive/2017-2018/undergraduate/departments-programs/psychology) only.

Graduate courses in Psychology support other departments offering Master’s Degrees. Students should have a basic understanding of psychology before attempting psychology courses at the graduate level. Graduate students should have had courses in General Psychology, Statistics, and Experimental Psychology.

Graduate students may qualify for a teaching endorsement in psychology by taking undergraduate courses required by the State Department of Education. For further information, see the Department Chair.
