COLLEGES

Undergraduate degrees at UNK are offered through four undergraduate colleges: the College of Fine Arts and Humanities (http://www.unk.edu/academics/fah), the College of Natural and Social Sciences (http://www.unk.edu/academics/nss), the College of Business and Technology (http://www.unk.edu/academics/bt), and the College of Education (http://unkcms.unk.edu/academics/coe).

The faculty members of the Colleges generally determine and govern their programs, including special admission requirements and degree requirements.

Two of these Colleges—the College of Fine Arts and Humanities and the College of Natural and Social Sciences—primarily offer degrees in the traditional academic areas.

The other two Colleges—the College of Business and Technology and the College of Education—primarily offer professional degree programs. The College of Education has special admission requirements. The following are brief descriptions of the goals and missions of each of the Colleges.

College of Fine Arts and Humanities
William Jurma (http://catalog.unk.edu/catalog-archive/2018-2019/graduate/faculty), Dean

The College of Fine Arts and Humanities (http://www.unk.edu/academics/fah) strives to provide students with a strong liberal arts education through a commitment to strong majors in all of its departments and programs. The College seeks to instill the necessity and the centrality of the artistic and humanistic imagination to all students. It is committed to a strong, talented faculty who believe in the traditional humanities, liberal arts, and fine arts, while also training students in the use of modern technologies.

College of Business and Technology
Tim Burkink, Dean

The College of Business and Technology (http://www.unk.edu/academics/bt) provides value to Nebraska by preparing our diverse student body to compete in dynamic professional environments and by promoting academic, social, technological, and economic development. The faculty and staff achieve this mission by:

• Providing student-centered educational opportunities including experiential learning;
• Advancing knowledge through applied and pedagogical scholarship;
• Providing service to our stakeholders.

College of Education
Sheryl Feinstein, Dean

The College of Education (http://unkcms.unk.edu/academics/coe) provides programs to prepare educators as well as professionals in the speech pathology, community counseling, sports, fitness, recreation and tourism fields. Programs of study have been developed in consultation with advisory committees to meet state and national standards. The faculty is committed to providing quality instructional programs, serving schools and communities. Professional education programs leading to initial certification are designed to develop each student’s knowledge, skills and dispositions related to specific endorsement areas. All programs within the College of Education are committed to preparing morally responsible professionals for a social and political democracy. Our Desired Outcomes for graduates focus on knowledge, skills and dispositions and a commitment to the infusion of technology, diversity and democratic principles.

UNK offers undergraduate programs for the preparation of early childhood, elementary, middle level, secondary, special education and K-12 teachers. Master’s degree programs are offered in curriculum and instruction, special education, instructional technology, elementary and secondary administration, speech-language pathology, school counseling and reading. Specialist programs in school psychology and educational administration are also offered.

The College prepares professionals in sports management, recreation, exercise science, athletic training, and travel and tourism. A Master’s degree program is offered in community counseling and in speech language pathology.
